Durable eyewear protection for your employees

If your employees work in an industrial environment, or in any setting that involves working with hazardous materials or flying debris or objects, they're potentially at risk of damaging their eyes. Specsavers has paired with Stryder Eyewear to create an enhanced range of safety eyewear covering a wider range of industries than our previous ranges.

Stryder Eyewear has been manufacturing eyewear for over 50 years and, working together, we've ensured that our safety line follows rigorous production methods, ensuring product integrity and meeting all required safety regulations.

The new range is made using materials and processes that offer customers more sustainable* choices and includes a variety of styles, including coloured frames and shapes.

The classic range is based on the styles of some of our global best-selling frames, with the addition of permanent safety side shields which offer protection without obscuring vision.

Scratch-resistant safety lenses can help prevent a serious accident and, as they're prescription lenses, they can be worn in place of the employee's glasses. Every pair of safety glasses is unique and made to the measurements and prescription of the individual. Our lenses are certified to EN166 S (CR39 and glass increased robustness lenses only) and F (polycarbonate only) standards, offering clarity, durability and protection.

* The range includes some frames which are made using high-performance raw materials. These raw materials, traditionally sourced from fossil fuels, have a proportion of their content replaced with materials from plant-based sources. This allows customers to reduce their consumption of non-renewable materials without compromising on performance.
